WHITLEY COUNTY MARRIAGES, 1818-1850

Edwin Hammons to Sabe Bryant, Nov. 8, 1843
(License not found)

Edwin Harmon to Sabre Bryant, Nov. 4, 1844

NOTE: It looks like whoever transcribed these marriages didn't know how to read the old hand-writing! He was either a Hammons or a Harmon. No way of knowing what this said unless we could see the original marriage record. According to the information contained with these marriages, a Mrs. Lucretia Sharp of Williamsburg, Kentucky transcribed these in January, 1930.

Hope we can be of further help later.

The text is written in cursive and appears to be a list or inventory of items, possibly related to the "Inventory of the Library of the University of Cambridge" mentioned in the header. Again going back through old notebooks and found a marriage for a Jennie Hammond to Greenville Bailey June 10, 1899 the only Jennie Hammond I had was Jennie d/o Felix Hammond and Nancy Smith She had married Jesse Browning in 1891 but I could never find then on 1900 census I searched today and found Green Bailey and wife Jennie on 1900 Wayne co census and lo and behold next door is her sister Arminda/Arminda Hammond Bowen and her husband Ambrose.. I am searching for Jennie on 1910 and can not find her but I found a Green Baikey married 2 x . now to a Margaret So I am assuming Jessie Browning died before 1899 and Jennie remmarried and then Jennie died before 1910

Min. Orig. No. 332,325.

-----oOo-----

Respectfully returned to the Chief of the Board of Review,
with opinion as follows:

The soldier had three wives. He was divorced from the first wife, Alefor Hammond, April 2, 1856. He was next married to Christine Horn, October 18, 1859. She died about 1869, leaving two children, Lydia, born March 15, 1864, and George W., born May 20, 1866.

His third wife was Nancy E. Smith, mother of the children Arminda, born September 29, 1870, and Virginia B., born December 17, 1872. There is no record evidence of this marriage. It appears that the parties commenced living together soon after the death of the soldier's second wife, and that the owner of the land where they lived told them they must marry or go away.

James K. Music says that Nancy was living at his sister's when she went to live with Hammond, on the old Bill Crum place. Mr. Crum told them they would have to marry or get off his land, they couldn't live there in that shape. Nancy then came back to his sister's, and a wedding day was set. He thinks was in the summer of 1870. On the day set for the marriage they went up Tug River to Alex Romans on the Kentucky side of the river. Witness went up with them but did not see them married. They came out of a house and said they had been married, and after that they lived together until Hammond died.

Jesse Marcum says it was upon his land that Hammond and Nancy were living before they were married, and that his wife and some others got to kicking about it and he told Felix he must marry her or put her away, but she said he would marry her. He does not know when this was, but the weather was warm and it was about a year after Hammond's wife, Christina, died.

Marcum says he went across the river with them and saw them married, and that he pulled off his coat and Hammond was married in it. He does not remember who was present. It was rather on the quiet, and few were present. After the ceremony we all came down Tug River a little way to a whiskey boat. I had helped Felix along with a little money, and when he got to the boat we said "Felix is married, now he must treat". Then we all treated around and all got drunk. After that they lived together until the soldier died.

The testimony of a large number of witnesses corroborate the statement that the parties went off to get married, and returned and said they were married, and that they then commenced living together as husband and wife, and were so accepted and recognized.

The direct evidence of a witness who swears that he saw the ceremony performed, is proof of legal marriage, and the concurrent testimony of matrimonial cohabitation thereafter is corroborative.

It is my opinion that the children of the soldier by his last wife should be recognized as legitimate, equally with the issue of the former marriage.

Very respectfully,

W. J. O. E. Smith
Chief of Law Division.

WAYNE COUNTY IN THE CIVIL WAR.

The storm of civil war which broke over the country in the early days of 1861 produced in Wayne county, as everywhere else throughout the Old Dominion, a state of the wildest excitement. Business was suspended, and men were divided in opinion upon the mighty issues of the day, but all were united in one fact, and that was that the most gigantic civil war of modern times was in progress. What it would be no one could tell; the people called loudly for volunteers, and many of Wayne's sons responded to the call, enlisted and carried arms in defense of the Lost Cause. The call by the Federal government was also heard, and 715 men from Wayne hastened to recruiting stations and enrolled their names and marched to the defense of the Union. Of the latter some served in the 14th, 139th and 45th Kentucky regiments, and others in the 3d, 5th, 11th and 13th West Virginia regiments, and all that went to the field the latter served in the 5th. We here present the roll of one company which was entirely composed of Wayne county men. That was

THE COUNTY IN 1883

According to the census of the entire population of the mile below Hubbardstown. The building is quite an old one, and stands near where the house was located in which the first Methodist Church in the Big Sandy valley was organized. The Rev. N. C. Beckley is in charge. The membership is 20, nearly all of whom are descendants of the pioneers of Methodism in this section of the State. Round Bottom Church is pleasantly situated on the bottom from which it takes its name. The building is one of the best church edifices in Wayne county, and is valued at $1,000. The membership is 20.

The United Presbyterian Church at Cassville was organized as a mission station on the 13th day of May, 1876, with 18 members. Rev. N. R. Kirkpatrick was the first pastor. They have an excellent Sabbath school, which is doing a good work.

THE TOWN OF CASSVILLE

is situated at the forks of the Big Sandy river, thirty miles from its mouth. A destructive conflagration visited it in May, 1883, and laid almost the entire business portion of the town in ashes. It is now fast improving, and at the present time has one postoffice, one saw mill, one blacksmith shop, one graded school building, one brick church (Baptist), three hotels, one Masonic hall and six general mercantile stores. Work on the lock and dam now being built just below the town, adds much to its business at this time.

It was incorporated on the 13th day of November, 1875; 321½ acres were included within the corporate limits. The first election was held on the 10th day of December, 1875, at which time the following officers were elected: Mayor, James H. Marcum; recorder, John C. Romans; councilmen, William H. Frasher, Daniel Short, Callahan Beaire, and L. M. Marcum and Wayne Damron. The present officers are: Mayor, John Browniey; recorder, L. M. Marcum; councilmen, Samuel Damron, Callahan Beaire, N. R. Kirkpatrick and James L. Fuller.

LINCOLN DISTRICT, NO. 4,

the most southern in the county, and is bounded on the north by Butler district, east by Grant, south by Logan county, and west by the State of Kentucky, from which it is separated by the Tug river. The surface is broken. Some of the hills and knobs bordering on Tug river and its tributaries are from 300 to 500 feet in height, and in some places abrupt and rocky, but more generally the slopes descend in gentle grades to the valleys below. Over these slopes and summits is standing a dense forest, and beneath them the earth is literally full of coal of an excellent quality. The forest trees are of many varieties, such as oak, beech, maple, hickory, black and white walnut, poplar, ash, chestnut, sycamore, and on the high ridges, pine, hemlock and spruce. There are but few streams. The eastern part is drained by the Right fork of Twelve Pole river and its tributaries. The streams falling into Tug river have a general northwest course. Among them are Powdermill creek, Lost creek, Camp creek, Bull creek, Silver creek, Drag creek, and Jennys creek, the historic stream of the county.

The first cabin was built by a man named Nevens, in the year 1799. In the next year (1800) he was joined in his wilderness home by John Wilson, Jacob Noe, John Prinston, Richard Williamson, Hezekiah Wiley, Job Spence, Lazarus Damron, Daniel Cox, John Jarrel and Henry Hampton. In the next ten years many other cabin homes appeared along the valleys and upon the hills of this region. Among those who assisted in establishing them were: William Thompson, Josiah Robinson, William Adams, Adam Crum, William Bromley, Micajah Frasher, James Vinson, Elijah Donithan, Richard Williamson, Thomas Copley, Jacob Marcum, William Crum, John Marcum, Josiah Marcum, Moses Marcum, James Kirk, William Ratcliffe, John Spaulding, Clemens Spaulding, Alexander Sutherland, Richard Evans, David Garred, John Cox, Samuel Damron, James Fraley and Leonard Swearingen.

Hezekiah Wiley, mentioned above, was a son of the celebrated Jenny Wiley, whose captivity among the Cherokee Indians is elsewhere noticed in this work. He made the first improvement of Twelve Pole river that is now within the bounds of this district. It consisted in the clearing of a

James M. Sprouse

Sprouse nominated by Carter

A former West Virginia
Supreme Court justice and well-known Williamson area native has been nominated by President Carter for a judgeship in the Fourth Federal Circuit Court of Appeals.
The nomination of James M.
Sprouse, 54, now of Charleston, for the judgeship was announced Tuesday.
He is the second Mingo County native to be nominated by Carter for a southern West Virginia judgeship. Judge
Robert J. Staker of the Mingo County Circuit Court was nominated last month.

A connection to family of Meade
but how?

Sprouse, who lost a race for the governorship by less than 13,000 votes in 1968, has long been considered a candidate for the federal bench.

"Of course, I'm looking forward to it," he said. "If I'm confirmed it will be great. I enjoyed working on the West Virginia Supreme Court tremendously. I like to think I made some contributions."

He said the nomination added a special dimension to his Fourth of July holiday, which he celebrated with a fishing trip to his farm in Union, Monroe County.

The federal appeals court is based in Richmond, Va.

Sen. Jennings Randolph said
of Sprouse's nomination:

"I am confident that the Department of Justice and the White House have fairly reviewed the nominees. James Sprouse's name, which is being forwarded to the Senate, is in keeping with President Carter's desire to select qualified and experienced judges."

Besides seeking the governorship in 1968 — a bid he lost to Republican Arch Moore by a vote of 378,315 to 365,530 —
Sprouse ran in the 1976
Democratic gubernatorial primary and lost to Jay Rockefeller.

Sprouse was a state Supreme Court justice from 1972 to 1975.

He received degrees from St.
Bonaventure College and Columbia University Law School and studied international law at universities in France.

Sprouse is in private practice, with offices in Charleston. He is married and is the father of five children.

Sprouse's mother, Mrs.
James M. (Garnet) Sprouse,
Sr., now resides in Charleston.
He has two aunts, Mrs. Mae Johnston and Mrs. Lucille Maynard, who resided in Fairview Addition of Williamson.

The judge nominee said he does not know where his West Virginia office would be located. He said he expects the Senate consideration to take several weeks.

Sprouse once ran for Governor of W. Va.
